Design Concept

The logo combines a saffron flower with the outline of a glass jar, connecting the brand's namesake ingredient to its focus on bulk, package-free dry goods. I used loose, organic strokes for the jar to give it a handmade feel that reflects the store's natural and sustainable values, while the saffron flower inside is drawn in a lighter, more delicate line to add a quiet elegance and highlight the care behind the products. The overall mark stays modern but warm, balancing minimalism with a human touch, and the mix of English and Chinese type reinforces the brand's multicultural identity and approachability.

These colors draw from the saffron flower's purple tones and the warmth of saffron itself, while the green reflects the store's focus on natural, organic goods and the orange represents its selection of dry, bulk items.

I used saffron flower petals as the element for the spacing guide because the petals are encased inside the jar, which reflects their fragility and the need to protect them. It felt important to mirror that sense of care through intentional spacing. The saffron flower is also central to the Saffron & More brand, so incorporating it into the guide felt natural and meaningful.
